Minutes from the May 23 Meeting of the Board of Trustees

Present: Trustees: Meera Deean, Rick Dimino, Rickie Golden, Peter Kuttner FAIA, Anne-Marie Lubenau FAIA, Patrick McCafferty PE, Kelly Sherman, David Silverman AIA, Ted Touloukian AIA, Laura Wernick FAIA, Ken Willis

Staff: Polly Carpenter FAIA, Ben Cohen, Billy Craig, Michela Davola, Jenny Effron, Vaughn Horn, Victoria McKay, Pamela de Oliveira-Smith, Eric White

Absent: Nadine Gerdts, Eric Krauss, Bennet Heart, Haril Pandya AIA

Call to order: Noting the presence of a quorum, President Wernick called the meeting to order at 12:10 pm and welcomed the Board.

Minutes of prior meeting: Upon a motion by President Wernick, it was:
VOTED to accept the minutes of the December 2017, Board meeting as submitted; Peter Kuttner FAIA motioned. Anne-Marie Lubenau FAIA seconded;

Unanimous.

Financial Report: Ben Cohen reported that the Q1 financials are on track and that he has not withdrawn money from reserves. January investments looked good, but fell sharply after that. Projected revenue is down (due to timing) and he is working on reports on all of the pledge receivables.

BSA Board report: Rick Dimino, as the liaison between the BSA and BSA Foundation board is looking into ways to improve communication and be more proactive with both boards. The BSA Board is beginning to develop a strategic plan in response to the completion of the BSAF's strategic plan. The more the two Boards can work together towards a singular goal, the more the effective the ability to work will be.

Goal 3 language: Laura Wernick discussed the proposed language around Goal 3 and how it is to be defined. An important factor is to make sure the exhibitions align with the strategic goal.

Policy Committee: Jenny Effron reported on the Policy Committee, that they are shaping the resiliency forum for the upcoming Fall and that they are bringing back Design Boston which will take place late June/early July.

Community Design update: Vaughn Horn reported that the Call for Proposals is in its second draft and will be completed in the next few weeks with a launch date of late June/early July.

Governance Committee: President Wernick reported that the Governance Committee met yesterday. There is more need for members. The goals of the committee are to:
-Set criteria.
-Make sure the existing board knows about the organization and their role.

Adjourn: Wernick requested a motion to adjourn, motion by Silverman, seconded by Sherman, it was VOTED to adjourn the meeting at 2:00 pm;

Unanimous.

Respectfully submitted,

Michela Davola
(on behalf of Ted Touloukian, Secretary)

Re: Executive Director's Report

Date: June 27, 2018

Administrative

A BSA task force is currently examining how to advance equity, diversity and inclusion as well as harassment in firms, membership and the organization (BSA and Foundation). Laura is on the task force and other Foundation board members are welcome to join.

Financials

Annual audit is completed; the report and recommendations are included in the Board Packet Enclosures. We are beginning work on the budget, which this year will be expanded to a three year budget with targets to get us into the black.

Exhibitions

In the main gallery, NatureStructure opened May 17 to an enthusiastic new crowd of 200 mostly first-time event attendees. Curator tours and other public programming is in development. In the Salt Gallery, Design for Diversity: The Aga Khan Award for Architecture opened May 26. Panel discussions and tours will take place throughout the summer. The 2020 Call for Proposals at BSA Space was posted June 8. The CFP requests proposals connected to 1) measuring sustainability in ways that move beyond the abstract and 2) infrastructure's role in creating an equitable, resilient, and vibrant city. The listed order of those themes aligns with the open spring and summer 2020 slots. These topics were agreed upon during the May 2018 meeting of the Exhibitions Committee, and are intended to align broadly with the BSA Foundation's overall strategic agenda.

Programs & Community

In late May, 4 architects from CannonDesign met with the entire 5th grade at the Curley K-8 school in Jamaica Plain to lead students in a hands-on activity that complemented their new unit "Envisioning the Curley as a 21st Century School". Also in May, middle schoolers from the Rising Tide Charter School in Plymouth came to BSA Space to learn about actual rising tides and to redesign BSA Space's 'front lawn' in preparation for a wetter future.

Community:

Work is underway to:

- Create a "call for projects" for nonprofits and other organizations to utilize the BSA Foundation network as a clearinghouse for those who seek technical assistance in the planning and implementation of community-oriented projects.
- Create internal assessment criteria for readers of applications submitted to the BSA Foundation for community projects
- Create a "call for volunteers" to compile a catalog of Boston-based architecture firms and allied design firms who are most able to complete community-oriented projects.
- Develop a long-term strategy to achieve the Community Design Goal.

Policy:

There will be a Designing Boston focused on Accessory Dwelling Units held on Monday June 25th from 6-8pm at BSA Space. We are working to finalize the speaker list, but so far we have Marcy Ostberg from Boston's Housing iLab, James Shen, a Harvard Loeb fellow and Chris Herbert from the Joint Center for Housing Studies.
The BSA has been asked to be part of the BPDA's efforts to create Resiliency Design Guidelines, along with Boston Harbor Now and A Better City.
We are still working towards a Resiliency Forum Series starting in the Fall.

BSA Update

We are sad (for us, but happy for her) to announce that ArchitectureBoston editor Renee Loth is retiring in October. She jointed AB in 2011 and has been a remarkable leader of the magazine. The BSA Board is reviewing a variety of options and look to have a plan outlined in July.

Several staff and members attended the AIA Conference in New York. Among the significant topics of the conference are addressing sexual harassment, increasing equity, diversity and inclusion in the profession and the AIA, and the future of the profession. BSA staff also plans to release a call for proposals in June for 2018 Summer CE Workshops, which will take place mid August.

A number of programs and awards occurred recently including Now Practice Now (focused on the state of architecture and what architects produce); Leadership Lunches for emerging professionals; Sustainable Design, Healthcare Facilities Design; Honor Awards and Unbuilt Architecture awards juries are all underway.

Communications

The summer issue of ArchitectureBoston magazine, Food, dropped on June 1. It is delectable! Members and subscribers receive copies in their mailboxes or at their offices. Free boxes are sent to our board reps (or their designees) at the Boston design schools. Free copies are available at BSA Space and city dwelling fans can by copies at the Brookline Booksmith and the Porter Square Bookstore. The June editor of the Boston Architecture Diary is Scott Burnham, urban strategist and curator of Nature/Structure. Ted Touloukian AIA, BSA member and BSA Foundation Trustee, can be viewed talking about the BSA Foundation's mission on Comcast Newsmakers. Also on Comcast, a 30 second PSA focusing on BSA Space is in a random rotation. An audit of its run times will be provided to us at the end of the broadcast cycle. Research on communications planning continues. The new Homeowner's Project Handbook website launched late May. Printed copies are expected to deliver later in June.

Re: Audit Report & update on deficiencies

Dt: June 27, 2018

The Independent Audit was completed by the firm of Nardella & Taylor and reported to the BSA Foundation Audit Committee on Tuesday, June 12. The audit was clean and the auditors noted the BSA Foundation had a very good year, increasing net assets by nearly $700K, and assets by nearly $350K.

The Auditors identified three "deficiencies" in their management letter to be addressed in our practices.

Contributions Receivable – Reporting

The auditors "recommend that the Foundation's management use Association Anywhere software to produce reports that show the amounts received from each donor during specified time periods and present this information to the Finance Committee at its regularly scheduled budget meetings.
Management may need to contact AA for a job ticket in order to create a reporting format that will be more useful for sorting and summarizing this data."

Currently this report does not exist in one report in AA and we obtain the data by running two separate reports and pasting them together. We are working with ACGI, our database vendor, to see how we can obtain all the data in one report.

Contributions Receivable – Aging

The auditors "recommend that management develop policies and procedures to ensure that all steps for entering new pledges to the AA database are followed at the time they are first entered. The accuracy of the reports that are generated should also be reviewed periodically."

We are drafting a set of policies to be presented to the Finance Committee for review that include the management of new pledges as well as the collection of pledges. We are upgrading our procedures to ensure timeliness in entering all pledges. With our current database, we need to manually adjust the few donors aging receivables for those who extended their pledges. The draft will be available for consideration at the Fall Finance Committee meeting.

Contributions Receivable – Collections

The auditors had several recommendations regarding collections of contributions.

"We recommend that the Managing Director, Finance, meet with the Managing Director of Advancement and the Development Manager routinely to review past-due pledges receivable in order to follow up with collection efforts by contacting donors, and to evaluate the adequacy of the allowance for doubtful accounts."

Ben, Victoria and Michela have arranged for quarterly meetings to review past-due pledges and processes for following through on collections and managing doubtful accounts. Ben will produce a quarterly contributions receivable report for them to follow up on past due pledges.

The auditors recommend that [policies and procedures] be in writing and include the risks to the organization and policies and procedures to address them.

As noted above we are drafting a set of policies to be presented to the Finance Committee for review that include the management of new pledges as well as the collection of pledges. These policies will outline the actions and procedures to address past-due pledges receivables and doubtful accounts. The draft will be available for consideration at the Fall Finance Committee meeting.

The auditors "recommend that the Board of Trustees and management consider its current policies and procedures for releasing funds to the Foundation for operating purposes, in order to make any votes or decisions for fiscal 2019 prior to or soon after December 31, 2018. These decisions will affect how ASU 2016-14 required discloses of the qualitative and quantitative information will be made in the 2018 financial statements and notes."

Any requests to the Treasurer and Board for releasing funds for FY 2019 will be done during the 2018 budgeting procedures.

The auditors "also recommend that management and the Board or a designated committee become familiar with the new not-for-profit reporting requirements of ASU 2016-14 in order to obtain an understanding of the new financial statement reporting format and to determine how the Foundation will present these new disclosures."

The auditors presented management with guidelines for new not-for-profit reporting requirements. Management is getting up to speed on the new requirements and particularly formatting and presentation.

BSA Foundation Budget Process

June

BSA/BSA Foundation E.D. and Managing Directors begin meeting, including two half day sessions, to prepare the budgets for the BSA Foundation and BSA. This year is significantly different as we are working to develop a three-year budget (2019-2021) and there are enormous changes to operations and finances. The process begins with an assessment of the past few years and where we stand currently, reviews of strategic goals, and an understanding that we are looking to address five key questions to prepare for the Boards in their review:

- What do expenses tell about our investment in the mission, vision and goals? Are they aligned? Anything we are doing that is not aligned?
- What do revenues tell us about our mission, vision and goals?
- Are revenues sustainable?
- Do we have intergenerational equity?
- Are there any red flags?

July

Managing Directors meet with their staff to identify plans and needs for each area of operations (Programs, Membership, Communications, Finance, Advancement, Operations), as well as identifying any potential changes to revenue or expenses. This includes identifying specifics over numbers and types of programs, development targets, website upgrades, technology needs, etc.

Managing Directors and E.D. meet for one full-day to discuss and review initial targets and expected metrics. Ben and Eric then begin drafting the budget.

August

The first draft of the budget is completed. The first year is more detailed with years two and three based on greater speculation and assumptions.

The Managing Directors review the first draft and have one more full day meeting with the ED. Specific recommendations including new revenue opportunities, areas to cut, or reallocation of resources are examined in detail. Edits are made to the budget and Eric and Ben revise the budget and prepare a budget narrative.

September

The first draft is presented to the BSA Foundation Finance Committee who meets in mid-September. The presentation includes the budget and narrative. This year we will be expanding the materials to include a draft work plan with targets and milestones as well as expanding to a three year budget. The Finance Committee reviews and makes their edits and recommendations. Eric and Ben revise the budget and narrative.

October

The budget, work plan, and narrative are presented to the BSA Foundation Board. If satisfactory the budget is voted upon. If there are edits and additional recommendations, the budget is revised before being finalized.

The BSA budget process

The BSA's process from June through August is exactly the same and staff are working on the budget, milestones/metrics, work plan and narrative for both the BSA Foundation and BSA. In mid-September the E.D. and Managing Director of Finance meet with the BSA Executive Committee to review the budget and make recommendations. In October the BSA Board reviews the budget and vote to make a recommendation. The official final vote on the budget occurs in December at the BSA Annual Meeting.

Strategic Planning Process Map 2017 DRAFT

VISION:

By 2030, Boston is a model of a resilient, equitable and architecturally vibrant city and region.

MISSION:

To build a better Boston by:

1. Engaging the public in the importance and power of design.
2. Inspiring vibrant neighborhoods & a more resilient & equitable city through design explorations with community-based audiences.
3. Provoking change through strong collaborative efforts and strategic use of our resources, including BSA Space.

BACKGROUND:

About the BSA Foundation, the Boston Society of Architects/ AIA (BSA), and BSA Space.

The BSA Foundation, created by the BSA in 1971, is committed to engaging the public in appreciating design excellence and helping solve our community's challenges through design. In 2014, the Foundation expanded our focus to "build a better Boston by engaging communities, inspiring vision, and provoking positive change" through design. We deliver the mission through exhibitions at BSA Space, youth and family design education programs, cultural programming, community, and civic work.

The BSA is committed to professional development for our members, advocacy on behalf of great design, and sharing an appreciation for the built environment with the public at large. Established in 1867, the BSA today has nearly 4,000 members and produces a diverse array of programs and publications, including ABX, and ArchitectureBoston the design ideas magazine. A chapter of the American Institute of Architects, the BSA is a nonprofit, professional-service organization for the design and building industry profession.

BSA Space is Boston's center for architecture and design and is home to the BSA and BSA Foundation. We host exhibitions, public and professional. Visitors are invited to view their world differently, imagine new possibilities for improving their community, and learn achievable and remarkable ways to do it. The BSA Space opened in 2012 and is free and open to the public.

STRATEGIC GOAL 1:

Ensuring access for every child in Boston to design education.

1. Expand design education programs to more neighborhoods.
2. Offer family design programs on more weekends.
3. Engage potential partner design education groups, local universities, state and local education leaders in a roundtable to facilitate expansion of design education.
4. Develop design education coalition to meet with leading city and state education administrators to explore and develop design curriculum for schools.
5. Develop and regularly offer design education training programs for educators and architects.
6. Tie exhibitions (when appropriate) to youth design education goals.
7. Mobilize foundation and corporate support for education initiatives.
8. Align BSA Foundation grants to support design education.

MEASURES OF SUCCESS:

Annually
- # Boston children who have access
- Level of understanding
- City and media recognition

Long-term
- Boston students entering architecture/ design profession
- Level of community engagement using design thinking
- Quality of Boston design

STRATEGIC GOAL 2:

Providing access to design resources for every neighborhood in Boston.

1. Expand community design programs to more communities in need by developing a project selection process.
2. Engage public figures, community leaders, key institutions, architecture firms, and design schools to deepen our understanding of community needs and opportunities and explore how to build the infrastructure.
3. Engage related organizations to build a coalition focused on providing design, planning, and building resources in communities.
4. Tie appropriate exhibitions to addressing neighborhood design challenges.
5. Partner with local universities and others to develop assessment tools.
6. Mobilize foundation and corporate support for community initiatives.
7. Align BSA Foundation grants to support community resources projects.

MEASURES OF SUCCESS:

Annually
- # Boston neighbors using design resources to solve challenges
- Quality of design projects
- City and media recognition

Long-term
- Access of design resources for all neighborhoods
- Quality and affordability of housing, resiliency, etc. for every neighborhood

STRATEGIC GOAL 3:

Effecting changes in policies that result in socially and environmentally excellent design for everyone in Greater Boston.

1. Build structure to organize and grow design workshop/charrette programming.
2. Deepen the impact of the Designing Boston (and related) programs.
3. Coordinate policy and growth agenda with the BSA advocacy agenda.
4. Build a coalition of like-minded organizations to advance policies and growth that support equity, resiliency and design excellence.
5. Develop and implement coordinated communication strategies around policy and growth.
6. Provide high quality public programs that increase awareness of excellent design policies and growth.
7. Mobilize foundation and corporate support for the design policy and growth agenda.

MEASURES OF SUCCESS:

- Quality of design in Boston
- Impact of policies on the urban core
- Recognition of policies in media and other cities
- Level of city leadership support for policies
