THE NUMBERS GUY

<http://blogs.wsj.com/numbersguy>

Wall Street Journal reporter Carl Bialik “examines the way numbers are used and abused” — revealing the stories behind the stories in the day’s news.

STATISTICS EVERY WRITER SHOULD KNOW

www.robertniles.com/stats

“A simple guide to understanding basic statistics, for journalists and other writers who might not know math.” It’s also a simple guide for any consumer of statistics — that would be you, especially if you slept through that class in seventh grade when they talked about medians.

OF ALL THE PEOPLE IN ALL THE WORLD

www.stanscafe.co.uk/ofallthepeople

“A unique show which uses grains of rice to bring formerly abstract human statistics to vivid and powerful life.” You’ll never look at a sack of basmati rice in the same way again.

DATA VISUALIZATION

A terrific introduction to the field of data visualization, courtesy of Smashing Magazine.

POLICY MAP

www.policymap.com

At last, do-it-yourself GIS. Map data at the national or neighborhood level; generate tables, charts, and reports. The site includes data sets covering demographics, real estate, crime, health, schools, housing affordability, employment, energy, and public investments.

US METRIC ASSOCIATION

www.metric.org

Visionaries or masochists — you be the judge. It’s hard to feel the momentum when the site’s new-and-updated-information section includes the entry “Added a 100 g chocolate bar photo to the candy page in the products in metric sizes section.” Even so, metric is all around you — probably more than you realize.

ARCHITECTURAL EXAM PASS RATES

www.ncarb.org/ARE/passrates.html

They’re not what you might guess. Among Boston Architectural College, Harvard, MIT, and Wentworth Institute of Technology, the lowest pass rate in the 2007 general structural exam was for MIT alums.

We’re always looking for intriguing websites — however indeterminate the connection to architecture. Send your candidates to: epadjen@architects.org.
